Hitler Army Masses; War Waits on Him

WORLD'S EYES ON HITLER

BERLIN—World awaits Hitler's address today, which probably will forecast either peace or war. He is expected to reply to recent declarations by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Chamberlain and to tell whether he will assist Mussolini in a prospective war against France.

LONDON—Information received here discloses that Nazi troops and war planes are massed in Austria, Saxony and Silesia, ready to menace France without a moment's warning.

HAVEN FROM WAR—Half famished, these children who fled across the border into France as General Franco's troops captured Barcelona are getting their first warm food in days . . . thanks to the people of Perthus.

War or Peace Up to Hitler

BERLIN, Jan. 30 (AP)—An anxious and feverishly rearming world looked to Adolf Hitler today for an indication in his Reichstag speech of how next he intends to use his power.

In the quiet of his vast new chancellery, a symbol of the might of the enlarged Nazi empire of 80,000,000 people, Hitler worked until late afternoon on the speech for tonight to crown the sixth anniversary of his rise to rule.

The subject matter of Hitler's talk, as usual, was a closely-guarded secret, but many wondered:

Would he raise Germany's colonial claims more strongly than ever?

Would he back Premier Mussolini in his demand upon France for colonial adjustment in Africa?

Would he discuss the cooled German-American relations?

Outside the heavily-draped win-

German Troops Ready to March

LONDON, Jan. 30 (INS)—A Berlin dispatch, printed today by the Liberal paper News-Chronicle, said it was learned that concentrations of German troops and military planes were going on in Austria, Saxony and Silesia.

The newspaper, which is often editorially critical of the Adolf Hitler regime, reported in its dispatch that sufficient troops were massed in the neighborhood of Germany's new Limes line, along the French frontier, to enable that system of fortifications to be fully manned within 12 hours.

Concentrations of aircraft, the message added, were said to have been made in certain zones of western Austria and Bavaria, from where they could "quickly come to Italy's support," and that other air concentrations were noted in western Germany, where they could serve as "protection against France."

The dispatch further claimed that many German planes were massed at Celle, where one of the Reich's largest underground airdromes has just been completed, and in other places along the Dutch frontier at East Friesia.

Germany, the dispatch continued, is reported to have 9000 first-line warplanes ready for action the moment any mobilization should begin.

Work Hinges on Downey Report

Governor Saltonstall may send a special message to the legislature on the need for hurricane and flood repair work at two state teachers' colleges, he indicated today.

"If I feel it advisable after receiving further information, I will do so," he said.

The governor explained that Education Commissioner Walter F. Downey, who last week succeeded James G. Reardon, would report to him after completing a personal investigation of conditions at Bridgewater and Framingham teachers' colleges.

Contractors left their work at the schools incomplete when the repairs probe began the state suspended payments.

SANFORD, Me., Jan. 30—Fear of foul play was expressed by authorities today following their unsuccessful attempt to locate Ernest L. Chadbourne, 31, missing from his home since Saturday

Franco Pushing On to Catalonia

BARCELONA, Jan. 30 (AP) — Insurgent armies struck from three directions today in an effort to break newly-formed government lines north of Barcelona and complete the conquest of Catalonia which, Insurgents predicted, would be done within a fortnight.

Forces moving northeast from Manresa pushed government troops back to Moya village and captured dominating positions, it was reported.

(A Burgos dispatch quoted the Insurgent high command that three international brigades, apparently newly organized by the government, offered some resistance along the Granollers-San Celoni road.)

Most Insurgent positions were

Snowy Woes Of an Editor In Kankakee

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 30 (AP)—Al Mayer, veteran editor of the Kankakee Republican-News, reported the blizzard conditions in Kankakee today in a telegram to the Associated Press as follows:

"Things is bad. Schools closed, pedestrians walking streets. Five-foot drifts. Even snow plows stalled. Bob sleds do taxi business. Traffic lights working, but no traffic. Some businesses didn't even open.

"Too cold to fish."

HEAVIEST SNOW OF WINTER DUE AS NEW STORM SWEEPS N. E.

Heavy snow drove down on New England today, grounding all planes, hampering traffic, and imperiling shipping, as warnings of a new and fiercer storm were ordered posted.

The new storm, "of wide extent and marked intensity, accompanied by northeast gales," is heading in this direction from the Middle West.

The weather bureau warned the snowfall was likely to be the heaviest of the winter, and urged that precautions be taken.

Afternoon school sessions were called off because of the storm in many cities and towns, including Cambridge, Somerville, Everett, Malden, Medford, Quincy, Arlington and Lexington Center. In Newton kindergarten pupils were excused.

The Cunard liner Andania, carrying 50 passengers from Cobh and Liverpool, was forced to anchor outside the harbor to await better weather before docking.

One death was charged to the storm when Thomas Ciras, 65, a Lawrence textile worker, collapsed and died while shoveling snow.

Numerous automobile accidents were reported as cars skidded on the wet snow. In Lowell several were hurt when a car collided with a school bus.

In Malden an Elevated bus skidded into a pole on Highland avenue. Windows were shattered and passengers shaken up.

Heavy snow, possibly changing to heavy rain, are expected all day today, tonight and tomorrow, with clearing and colder weather late tomorrow night.

Severely cold weather which had been expected for today did not materialize. The coldest was 29.6 degrees at 8:30 a. m., and the lowest temperature tonight is expected to be about 22 degrees.

The wind had a velocity of 30 miles this morning, as compared to a normal of 12 miles. The warmest Jan. 3 was in 1914, when the temperature climbed to 63, and the coldest in 1874, when the thermometer dropped to 5 below.

Howling Blizzard Sweeping Lakes Area

CHICAGO, Jan. 30 (AP)—A paralyzing blizzard whipped across the Southern Great Lakes states and the Ohio Valley today, burying Chicago under one of the heaviest snowfalls on record.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said if the storm continued all day at the severity prevalent in midmorning the nation's second city might have snow totaling more than the existing record of 19.2 inches in March, 1931, the fall was approximately one foot by 9:30 a. m.

In Chicago all schools were closed. Thousands of commuters were late to work.

The blinding snow caused three rear-end collisions on Chicago elevated lines, killing one man and injuring at least 50 other persons and shaking up scores of others.

As Prisoner's Fiancee Waits:

Boy Bandits Identify Victims From Lineup

It was turn-about again today in the Boston police headuarters lineup—with bandits identifying holdup victims who failed to identify the bandits.

Seven Boston youths—one of whose wedding was set for within a week—were principals in the lineup, all of them rounded up Saturday night for a series of holdups and burglaries in Roxbury and Dorchester.

The prospective bridegroom, Edward C. Wilkinson, 20, of Park avenue, Dorchester, admitted particil pation in one crime, the burglary of a drugstore in Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, with Joseph L. Bouve, 18, of Dudley street, Roxbury.

"I'LL WAIT," SHE SAYS

And while Wilkinson stood in the lineup, his sweetheart, Rose Bennett, 19, a next-door neighbor, was reported at her home as having "gone to Maine, to avoid publicity and to forget."

Only last week a pre-nuptial shower was given for Rose, and before she vanished she said:

"I love Eddie and I don't believe he was mixed up in robberies. I'll be waiting for him when the police let him go. We've known each other since we were youngsters. I'm going away for a few days, but I'll come back to him."

In the lineup with Wilkinson and Bouve were James and George Awalt, 18-year-old twins of Albion street, Roxbury; Francis X. Donovan, 19, of Elm Dale street, Roxbury; Clarence J. Cox, 16, of Wendover street, Dorchester, and Edward F. Lyons, 20, of West Cottage street, Roxbury.

HELD IN $10,000 EACH

Later, in Roxbury court, all except Cox were held in $10,000 each in regular session for the grand jury on their various pleas of guilty to some, and not guilty to other charges concerned with armed robbery, breaking and entering, larceny and using cars without authority.

Cox was arraigned in juvenile session as a delinquent, this charge being dismissed for a straight charge of armed robbery. He then was held likewise in $10,000 for the grand jury.

Many relatives of the seven were in the two courtrooms, but there were no emotional scenes as the arraigning formalities took place.

Dancing feet of glamorous Eleanor Powell tonight will join Washington's March of Dimes celebration . . . one of a dozen movie stars in the Capital to celebrate at the President's Birthday Ball for the benefit of infantile paralysis sufferers.

Nation Honors F.R., 57, Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (AP)—A nation eager to stamp out infantile paralysis helped President Roosevelt celebrate his 57th birthday anniversary today.

Mr. Roosevelt received no callers other than the congressional leaders he customarily confers with on Mondays. He remained in the living quarters of the executive mansion working on mail and on a brief radio speech to be delivered tonight.

Dimes poured into the White House from individuals in every part of the nation, while movie and stage stars gathered in the capital and other cities to appear at Birthday Balls where millions will dance tonight that others may walk.

Mrs. Roosevelt invited more than a dozen movie celebrities to a White House luncheon. Tonight she will meet them again as she briefly visits each of seven balls in capital hotels.

Among the stars here for the celebration are Eleanor Powell, George Brent, Errol Flynn, Luise Rainer, Lili Damita, Bruce Cabot, Ralph Bellamy, Frank Fay, Jean Hersholt, Annabella, Mitzi Green and Andrea Leeds.

The President will broadcast to the nation at 11:30 p. m. over three major networks — Columbia, National and Mutual.

25,000 to Attend Ball Here Tonight

A throng of 25,000 persons will jam the Boston Garden tonight for the huge party, replete with concerts, dancing, vaudeville and military pageantry, marking the President's birthday ball in aid of the fight against infantile paralysis.

John A. Roosevelt, youngest son of the President, will serve as the personal representative of his distinguished father.

Attorney-General Frank Murphy, former governor of Michigan, was also scheduled to appear on behalf of President Roosevelt. Dignitaries of city and state, including Governor Saltonstall, Mayor Tobin and Postmaster Tague, will lead the array of prominent box-holders.

Spectacular marching and drill exhibitions will be staged by 20 teams from Greater Boston patriotic groups. A dozen bands will make the rafters ring.

City Censor John J. Spencer and City Greeter Louis J. Brems will supervise a six-hour program of entertainment, consisting of specialty acts from theaters and night clubs. The birthday cake will be cut by John Roosevelt at 10 p. m.

Frada Girl and Boy Friend on Probation

Frances Frada, pretty 18-year-old North End girl who was star state witness in the Simpson murder case, was given a month's suspended jail sentence on a morals charge today in municipal court.

Her sweetheart, Daniel Mazola, 24, of Newton, who remained loyal all through her trouble in the Simpson case, was given a suspended fine of $30 on the same charge.

After being arrested in a raid at the Frada girl's home, Prince street, on January 12, the two had their case continued twice while they discussed marriage possibilities.

When Judge Joseph T. Zottoli warned the girl she would be sent to jail without any appeal if she and her sweetheart should be arrested again on a similar charge, Mazola demanded:

"Does that mean we can't see each other any more?"

Judge Zottoli said:

"It means that the sort of thing which brought you into court today has got to stop."

After pondering that, Mazola asked what would have to be done if he and Frances decided to marry. Judge Zottoli told him to make any arrangements he wanted.

FRANCES FRADA

MARIE SILVER

Would-Be 'Wedding Day' in a Cell

LURE-CASE GIRL SAD IN JAIL WITH BRIDAL ALL AWRY

She who is known as "Marie Silver" to police might have been a bride today . . . Instead she is in the Charles Street Jail, facing robbery charges as the alleged "lure" for a gang of young North End hoodlums.

Plans for the wedding were completed, she said today in the first interview granted since her arrest with another girl last Friday.

It was to have been "a kind of elopement," because her husband-to-be quarreled with his parents over her, she said.

But he really meant to marry her—and her lips quivered as she told of it—and now, well, no one would blame him if he didn't . . . He has, though, been to see her every day.

TELLS HER STORY

His name is "Mike" . . .

This and much more was revealed by the girl, eager to talk, eager to steel herself for the ordeal she knows is yet to come, with its threat of prison walls for a long time.

"We were in a Washington street restaurant," she said, and the "we" is herself and Faye Mikulka, 18, both of South Morgan street, in the West End.

"These men, the ones who were robbed, spoke to us, and bought us a drink, and then they wanted to go somewhere else. I was giving them a line, conning them, telling them we'd go to my sister's. It was silly, I know, I haven't any sister, but you know how you talk when you're trying to kid somebody.

"So there we were then in India street, near the Custom House, and all of a sudden we saw five men come out of a garage and start beating the two we were with. One of the five came over and slapped us and told us to get out of there.

"Believe me, we did. Then the police arrested us."

The girl says that "Marie Silver" is not her right name, and that she will never reveal her identity, no matter what the law does to her, because of the disgrace to her parents.

They are in Spain, she said, and know nothing of her arrest.

The Mikulka girl was released in bonds of $1000. Both face robbery charges, as do two men who are also held.

Woman Hides 'Secret'; Gets Jail Sentence

She was little and shabby, and she stood before the court.

She stubbornly shook her head when the judge, trying to be kind, asked her again and again what she had done with the money she had taken.

"Some for doctor's bills for my brother," she explained; "some to other relatives. Some to repair my house."

"This is not satisfactory," said Judge Wilford Gray in Middlesex court. "You must tell us more."

But she only shook her head. At last, patience exhausted, the court sentenced her to a year in the House of Correction. Still shielding her secret, if there is one, she was led away.

She is Miss Florence E. Holmes, 48. She lives in Brockton, and was a bookkeeper for the Starkweather Weather Engineering Co., Inc. She was convicted of taking $2885 last June, and placed on probation when she promised full restitution.

She gave back $500, and that was all.

She refused to tell why she hadn't paid back the rest, seeming to chose jail rather than further exposure of what happened.

TVA WINS IN HIGH COURT RULING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (INS)—Delivering a death blow to attacks by private utilities, the Supreme Court today dismissed the attack of 14 private utilities on the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley authority's far-flung power "yardstick" program.

The decision was 5 to 2. Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented. Justice Reed did not participate, and there was one vacancy, Justice Frankfurter not participating.

The court's opinion was delivered by Justice Roberts in the presence of a packed courtroom, which included many New Deal officials.

The high tribunal ruled that the private utilities lacked standing to bring the suit for injunction. It held that a three-judge Tennessee federal court, headed by Circuit Judge Florence Allen, properley dismissed the case.

In dismissing the suit, the court failed to rule on constitutionality of the TVA's present vast program of producing and selling electric power in competition with private utilities.

Failure of the court to rule squarely on the issue of whether the government is engaged in a valid navigation and flood control program—or whether it is operating a camouflaged public power program—provoked protest from the dissenting justices, Butler and McReynolds.

The court ruled that the Utilities have no right to be free from competition. Thus the court held, they lacked right to enjoin threatened acts of the government.

The decision thus leaves the TVA free to continue its program of instructing high dams on the Tennessee river and tributaries to protect areas from floods, make the river navigable and provide maximum hydro-electric power. The project, it is estimated, eventually will cost $500,000,000.

STRANGE case of a "she-he" had authorities at Petorkey, Michigan, baffled today. Above is Mrs. Lucy Pierce, with her two children. She married Pierce after his sex was changed by operation.

Woman 'Turned Man' Held for Beating 'Wife'

PETOSKEY, Mich., Jan. 30 (INS) — Police today delved into the baffling story of a woman who, after undergoing an operation that "changed her into a man," became so masculine that "he" is charged with having driven his "wife" out of their home with repeated beatings.

The central figure in the case, formerly Mrs. Fern Kuhns, now is known as "John V. Pierce."

"Pierce" is six feet tall, weighs 240 pounds and has more physical strength than the average man.

Following the operation several years ago to change her sex, she offered to provide a home for an unwed mother, Miss Lucy Veronica Tedesco, 27, and her child. The offer was accepted and a marriage ceremony was performed.

The story came to light when the young mother told her sister, a Detroit woman, that she no longer could stand the ill-treatment she and her two children suffered at the hands of her "husband." One of the children was born before her "marriage."

"Pierce" was arrested last week and charged with wife-beating and threatening to kill her sister-in-law. She was held in jail in default of $100 bond.

Mrs. Neva Griffen, daughter of Mrs. Kuhns, told authorities that her mother had remarried John Kuhns whom she had divorced. On this information Prosecuter A. T. Washburn considered placing a charge of bigamy against Mrs. Kuhns.

Washburn declared, however, that no bigamy charge would be presented because the marriage, legally, never took place. Mrs. Kuhns, he said, faces perjury charges in Charlevoix in connection with swearing falsely to a marriage license.

Mrs. Griffin demonstrated her belief that her mother had become a man by exhibiting a picture of a man standing with her in September, 1935, when "John Vernon Pierce" married Miss Tedesco.

Mrs. Griffin's husband also believed his mother-in-law had become a man. He visited Mrs. Kuhns in the Emmet county jail and gave her pipe tobacco which she smoked while working as a day laborer on WPA projects.

John V. Pierce

Mrs. Kuhns succeeded in raising a small light brown mustache, smoked her pipe incessantly and "swore like a trooper," Miss Tedesco said.

Frankfurter Takes Oath

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (INS)—Intoning an oath to do justice "to the rich and poor alike," Professor Felix Frankfurter of Harvard today was sworn in as an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

High government officials, friends of the justice and a crowd which filled the courtroom heard the brief ceremony. Hundreds waited in line, unable to enter.

Justice Frankfurter took the constitutional oath in the court robing romo. When court convened, his commission was read by Clerk C. Elmore Cropley. He repeated the oath of a justice, with upraised hand, and took his seat at the extreme left of the bench.

The new justice brought the court to its full strength of nine. Justice Louis D. Brandeis, close friend of Frankfurter, however, was absent today. He suffered an attack of grip three weeks ago and is convalescing, but remained indoorse because of inclement weather.

Justice Frankfurter settled himself in offices in the new building. He named oseph Rauh, Jr., formerly clerk of the late Justice Cardozo, as his clerk.

Attorney-General Frank Murphy, Secretary of Interior Ickes, Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, Assistant Attorney-Generay Joseph Keenan, Solicitor-General Robert Jackson and Chairman Hatton Sumners (D.) of Texas, of the House pudiciary committe, were among those present.

Mrs. Frankfurter occupied a seat in the justice's reserved section with several guests.

J. J. Murphy, Cambridge, Dies

Stricken with a heart attack, John Joseph "Joe" Murphy, one of the first in Cambridge to volunteer for service in the World War, died today at his home, 47 Harding street, Cambridge. He was 44 years old.

Born in Cambridge, he was the son of Daniel and the late Honora Murphy.

The deceased is survived by his father; three sisters, Mrs. James P. Murphy of Belmont, Mrs. Thomas Bannister of Somerville, and Mrs. William Ryan of Medford; and three brothers, William and Cornelius of Cambridge, and Patrick J. of Somerville.

The funeral will be from his late home on Wednesday morning with solemn high mass of requiem at St. Patrick's Church at 9. Interment will be at Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

Governor Hears Protests on Agnew

The coast guard patrol boat General Greene sailed from Woods Hole today to the assistance of the dragger Geraldine and Phyllis, disabled off Chatham. The cutter Tahoe reached the fishing boat earlier

Parkman Urges 'Moratorium'

A two-year moratorium on all "special spending bills" was urged today before the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs by ex-Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., corporation counsel of Boston.

He said that Massachusetts may yet have a state tax of $41,000,000 this year—as compared with $17,000,000 last year—and that would mean $7.50 added to the Boston tax rate, an "impossible" figure.

Parkman appeared on a comparatively unimportant bill to place a clay-pit bathing beach in North Cambridge under Metropolitan District Commission control.

The beach bill was favored by Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge, Sen. Arthur Blanchard, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neil, Jr., Thomas F. Gibson, and Jeremiah J. Sullivan, and others.

True Age Bill Seen Cupid Foe

Warning that publication of real ages of women in the votnig lists might be a revelation to prospective bridegrooms, and cause them to shy off, Rep. John B. Wenzler of South Boston today opposed a bill which would require that true ages be given police listers.

The bill has a hearing before the election law committee.

'Cocktail Hostess' Tells Rift

Insistence of Thomas J. A. Johnson, former Boston city greeter, that his sister and "cocktail hostess," Mrs. Lillian Johnson Halsey, buy a home at Magnolia and decorate it, caused trouble between her and her husband, Mrs. Halsey testified today.

She is trying to recover this money as part of her $25,000 suit against her brother's estate, being heard in Suffolk superior court.

Mrs. Halsey has told of working for her brother as his hostess at lavish cocktail and swimming pool parties at which noted guests were entertained, and of buying him a gold bed with black and silver "modernistic" pillows.

TELLS OF ARGUMENTS

Undergoing cross-examination today about the Magnolia house by Attorney John H. Devine, counsel for the estate, Mrs. Halsey startled the courtroom by shouting:

"There were nothing but arguments about that house between my husband and myself. He didn't want that house."

She said Johnson insisted that she buy the dwelling, and that at his orders she paid $140 for a marble mantel, when her husband wanted a stone mantel.

It was brought out that the mantel was charged to Johnson's account, but the bill was paid by Mrs. Halsey.

Judge Edward T. Broadhurst asked:

"Why did you pay for something he ordered?"

WANTED BILLS PAID

"Because I wanted the bills paid," replied Mrs. Halsey.

"Did you ever talk with your brother about paying these bills?" asked Judge Broadhurst.

Mrs. Halsey answered: "Whenever I worried Tom would say, 'Never mind, I'll take care of them. Don't worry.'"

Mrs. Halsey declared her brother agreed to repay her the $5000 she spent for the house, located in Shore road, Magnolia. She said when she went there after buying it, it was "all ripped apart" by decorators. She said:

"I was horrified and ran right out. Tom ran after me and said, 'Don't be alarmed. I'll take care of everything.' I knew his word was as good as his bond."

Her brother loved to watch the sunset, Mrs. Halsey testified, and because her house faced the west, he used to come in the late afternoon and sit watching the changing colors.

Fumes Kill Man; 40 Flee Danger

An accident in which 40 persons were forced to flee fumes at the Star Market, Watertown, after a refrigerator pipe connection broke, ended fatally today when Horace Holman, 25, of Walnut street, Newtonville, died at Trumbull hospital, Brookline.

Young Holman, employed at the market, was filling a tank when the pipe burst, police said. Cause of death was given as pneumonia, due to the inhalation of the fumes.

Woman Attacker Given 15 Months

Charged with having attempted to attack two women in West Newton, Joseph F. Prendergast, 27, of Howard street, West End, was sentenced to 15 months in the house of correction in Newton court today.

The women, Miss Mona Whitehouse, 20, of Watertown street, and Mrs. Marie Meady, 32, of Regent street, both West Newton, testified that in each instance he had leaped out of the shadows and seized them.

6 SAVED IN N. Y. FIRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (AP)—Three firemen were overcome and six persons, including a crippled woman, were rescued from an adjoining building today when fire swept a factory near Brooklyn bridge.

PLAYBOY THIEF RETURNING TO 'FACE MUSIC'

Out of the broken heart of a mother who has seen troubles multiplying about her brood like the gathering force of a hurricane came an agonized cry today as she waited to hear when her 18-year-old son would reach home from New York after his wild spree on stolen money.

"Stand by him?" she cried, "of course we'll stand by him—but he's got to face the music!"

Then, as the weight of it all bore down upon her, she wept.

The boy is 18-year-old George Derome, telegraph messenger, who, a week ago, tossed $32,000 in securities behind a radiator of the Sears building in Washington street, and ran away with $600 in cash that had been entrusted to him.

He was still in the Tombs in New York today after a gay week in which he spent all the money and got himself engaged to a chorus girl named "Marion," according to police.

John Enos, 18, also of Saratoga street, who shared George's New York adventure, is to return with the police and George.

REFUGEE HERE TELLS NAZI WOE

By ROBERT GREEN

The wind howled through the ice-stiffened rigging, snow blanketed the decks, and all but one of the 50-odd passengers of the American Export liner Excambion shivered as the Mediterranean cruise ship docked at the Army Base today.

That one was Ernst Haber, 12-year-old fatherless German boy, who had been waiting long, bleak years for his mother.

Ernst was all warm inside, and the warmth shone in his eyes and was evident in his ready, boyish laughter as debarking passengers bid him good-by.

His mother would meet him tomorrow when the Excambion docked in New York. That was why Ernst was warm while everyone else was cold.

That was one reason. The other was that here in the United States no one minded that he wasn't an Aryan.

Three and a half years ago, Ernst related, through a volunteer interpreter, he first learned what it meant not to be an Aryan.

It was then that men in brown uniforms came for his father, he said.

His father had died in some terrible place called a concentration camp his mother told him—and the boy's eyes clouded at the remembered incident.

Then came the worst blow of all. The men in brown uniforms came again. This time they took his mother away.

He felt lost, but he was glad that she wasn't going to that concentration camp.

Ernest himself, his father dead, his mother thousands of miles away, was sent to distant relatives in Palestine.

In Palestine he found that it was almost as dangerous to be a Jew as it was at home. There Arabs hated Jews almost as much as Nazis did.

It was in Palestine that Benjamin Davis, a New Yorker on vacation, met the little refugee boy.

Relatives of the boy there made arrangements to send Ernst to his mother and asked Davis to take care of the boy on the long ocean trip. So that's the way it happened . . .

Plane Hostess Cinderella Buys Gowns

Miss May Leslie, who rides the airlanes in and out of Boston, today was shopping for the most glamorous of gowns for the coming out party she never dreamed would be hers.

For Miss Leslie, airline hostess, and as pretty and dainty as old lace, has been chosen as "Cinderella of the month" by Peter Arno, famous artist, and his cafe society playboys.

A month or so ago Arno and his group of "children men" set out to satirize society debutante debuts and chose Wilhelmina "Tugboat Minnie" Baard, daughter of a tugboat captain, for the event.

It was a debut to end all debuts, but the New York boys apparently have caught the fever, and Miss Leslie is No. 2 in a series of "unknown and deserving young ladies" who are to have coming-out parties all their own. Hers will be in New York on February 8.

Miss Leslie, who is on the New York to Chicago run of the American Airlines, makes trips into Boston three times a week. Five feet five inches tall and weighing 115 pounds, she is a blue-eyed brunette and about as pretty as they come. Arno met her two weeks ago while on an air journey.

New 'Quakes Spread Terror In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 30 (AP)—New panic was reported today among survivors of Chile's disastrous earthquake after more shocks, described as "very strong," in the same region where between 25,000 and 30,000 already had died.

The new temblors, lasting more than two minutes, rocked Chillan and Concepcion shortly before last midnight, injuring 20 persons at Concepcion and spreading terror among the homeless sleeping in the public plaza at Chillan.

Some sources said the new shocks were almost as strong as those last Tuesday which destroyed Chillan and left an estimated 15,000 dead among the city's 40,000 population. There was little property left to be damaged, however.

At Concepcion several more walls caved in.

When the ground again trembled violently, reports said, women and children in Chillan screamed and men fought to reach open spaces safe from falling trees and crumbling walls.

The government, alarmed by the increasingly difficult situation, called Congress into extraordinary session today to consider relief measures. Informed sources expected the Legislature to seek an emergency foreign loan of about 1,200,000,000 pesos (approximately $62,400,000).

The work of an army of carpenters building mammoth wooden barracks to house the homeless of Chillan continued.

One amazing rescue was reported. Workmen said they found alive a ten-year-old boy, caught beneath the ruins of the Chillan municipal theater in which 400 persons were killed.

Walsh-Curley Tilt Up to F. D.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Final determination of leadership of the Democratic party in Massachusetts may be made by President Roosevelt himself, according to gossip here today.

Senator Walsh has refused to comment publicly on former Governor Curley's attack of last Thursday, but was reported to have told friends privately that the ex-governor is "through politically" and is "a destructive force." Ex-Governor Curley accused Senator Walsh of deserting the party in failing to support the Curley candidacy for governor.

The test of strength is expected to come when the President sends his nominations to the Senate for three important political posts in Massachusetts, paying a total of $20,000 a year.

The positions are collector of internal revenue, $7000 a year; United States attorney, $7500, and United States marshal, $6000. Both Walsh and Curley have candidates for each of the jobs.

Another row between them is brewing over the chairmanship of the state Democratic committee. Curley has already announced he favors ex-State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley, while Senator Walsh is said to favor Joseph Mulhern, a Boston attorney.

Although Curley was defeated the last three times he ran—by Lodge, for the senatorship; by Tobin, for the Boston mayoralty, and by Saltonstall at the last election—it is believed almost certain that he will seek the Democratic senatorial nomination, opposing Walsh.

Eva Tanguay Losing Fight

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 30 (INS)—Eva Tanguay, the "I don't care" girl of the golden days of vaudeville, is making a new fight for life.

The famous star of yesteryear, who emerged from a serious illness last December, is steadily losing ground, according to Dr. Wendell W. Starr, her physician, who added:

"We are watching Miss Tanguay 24 hours a day. She is suffering from complications derived from arthritis and anemia. However, she is fully conscious and quite optimistic."

BEWARE SHY HEAD HUNTER!

The head hunters of Dutch New Guinea are a shy and friendly folk, Boston's noted explorer-scientist, Frederick E. Crockett, told Mayor Maurice J. Tobin and Admiral Richard E. Byrd today—but you have to keep a weather eye cocked if you want your head to stay on your shoulders.

The mayor and Admiral Byrd greeted Crockett at the East Boston docks on his return from two years among the headhunters. Others who met his ship, the Dutch freighter Talisse, were his mother, Mrs. Eugene Crockett, and former shipmates, Norman Vaughan, Edward E. Goodale and Charles W. Smith.

Crockett's wife was with him on his expedition but an attack of malaria has kept her in the warmer climate of Japan, the 31-year-old former member of Admiral Byrd's Antarctic expedition explained.

WHY THEY TAKE HEADS

The expedition, though successful, was no "junket," Crockett said.

"On the trip I was hit by appendicitis and operated on at Tahiti, where they didn't have enough anesthetic. Then the cook was shot to death," he said.

"Finally we arrived at New Guinea and went into the interior, where we set up headquarters. My wife was the anthropologist of the expedition. She was stricken with malaria so badly she had to stay in Japan to convalesce."

Crockett returned with 78 cases of specimens, birds and snakes.

"Headhunters take heads simply because they want to eat," he explained. "It's not any ritual.

"Generally they're quiet, and they know the government law of a head for a head, so now head-snatching is very rare. But their mental processes are so different from ours we have to be careful. We never know how they're going to react."

ILLNESS SAVES THEM

He told of a German explorer on a walking tour who became angry when he found a native had touched his revolver and hastily started to "break" the weapon to look at the shells, but before he could finish one of his porters cut off his head.

"Later the man admitted his deed," said Crockett. "It was partly the German's fault, for he had acted too hastily and the native's reaction was not a white man's. He didn't know what was coming."

Crocket explained he and his wife were rather glad to get malaria, for there had been an epidemic of the disease near their village shortly after their arrival, and the natives began to get the idea Crockett and his wife might be responsible.

"When we got it ourselves, that proved we'd been using no black magic," he said.

Dewey Ignores Weinberg Death

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (INS)—Apparently unperturbed by the dramatic suicide of George Weinberg, the state's star witness, District Attorney Dewey today proceeded with the re-trial of Tammany Leader James J. Hines as if nothing had happened.

Immediately court opened lawyers for both sides, including the "racket busting" prosecutor, went into a 15-minute huddle at the bench with Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr. They discussed the Weinberg suicide. The jury was absent.

The jury was recalled. No announcement was made and "Big Joe" Ison, a former policy banker, was recalled for further cross-examination by Chief Defense Counsel Lloyd P. Stryker.

Bay State PWA Asks 10 Million

Proposed Massachusetts Public Works Administration projects totaling $10,737,204, of which the federal government would grant $4,772,368, were before the United States Senate at Washington today.

On the heels of the WPA appropriation slash, the Senate was considering whether to appropriate more PWA money. The list included all projects which might be eligible if more funds were available.

Massachusetts had 48 projects in view. Pennsylvania led with 956 projects, totalling $289,450,000.

Following are listed the Massachusetts projects, the first figure being the estimated grant, the second the estimated total cost:

Open Taxi Sites, Readville Track O. K. Due Here

Approval of public taxi stands, as favored by last November's referendum, and approval of a dog track at Readville were anticipated today by the city council as the council prepared for its weekly meeting.

More important of the two questions was that on taxi stands, an issue on which the council's committee on public safety has held hearings, resulting in an investigation by the Finance Commission into charges that four councilors approached officials of the Independent Taxi Operators' Association relative to an alleged "slush fund."

Construction of the dog track at Readville is sought by a group headed by Huntington R. ("Tack") Hardwick, former Harvard football star.

Several weeks ago the council approved the original petition for the track, but Mayor Tobin vetoed it last Monday and a new petition was filed.

What his action would be in the event that the council approved the second petition today was problematical.

7 Boy Bandits Identify Victims

street, Roxbury, failed to identify the bandit who held her up in a cleansing shop at Brook avenue and Dudley street, Roxbury, where she is employed. Cox, in the lineup, identified her as the woman he held up alone in the shop last Christmas Eve.

Cox and George Awalt both said that George Arabin, owner of a store in Talbot avenue, Dorchester, "looked familiar" to them, after Arabin had failed at identification. The youths admitted holding up someone in the store.

Cox, George Awalt and Donovan also admitted holding up Morris Bossman, of Wentworth terrace, Dorchester, in a Woodrow avenue store where Bossman works. Bossman had failed to identify.

OTHER CRIMES LISTED

Cox and Donovan admitted a store holdup in Harold street, Roxbury, after Wolf Feldberg, the victim, failed at identification.

Strenuous denial that he was the bandit was made by Donovan, however, after Albert Meshaka, an employe, had "positively identified" him as his assailant in a drugstore in River street, Hyde Park.

Lyons admitted burglary in a drugstore in Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, and said Cox and Bouve were with him; while Bouve admitted breaking into a Humboldt avenue drugstore and stealing a gun.

All that John Awalt would admit was that he supplied the two revolvers used by the gang, in exchange for an overcoat and a ring. He claimed he found one gun last summer in a gutter in Monadnock street, Roxbury, and "took the other away from three kids" two months ago.

Seek Youth as 'Death Note' Writer

NEWPORT, Vt., Jan. 30—Department of Justice sleuths from Boston assisted by state and county authorities are seeking a Newport youth suspected of writing death threats to Dr. R. E. Gage, widely known chiropractor, it was disclosed today.

Threats of "death at midnight" were contained in two postcards dated January 20 and 25, officials said.

The first threat was written in pencil and signed "A Friend" while the second was written in ink and bore the signature 'An Enemy.'

The doctor at first took the threats lightly, but later notified State's Attorney Maxwell L. Eaton, who in turn called in Department of Justice officials.

The physician told authorities he knew of no enemies who might be responsible for the threats.

State's Attorney Eaton said, however, that preliminary investigation pointed toward a Newport youth. The handwriting on the postcards is being checked.

U. S. Air Secrets Given French

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (INS)—The official French air mission, here to buy war planes, was given a free hand to roam through American aircraft factories now producing military planes for Uncle Sam, before either the army or navy knew it was in this country, it has been learned.

This access to America's most prized military aviation secrets was arranged by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

dows of his study, the capital assumed a holiday air to celebrate the nation's new position as a dominating continental power.

The population was astir from early morning when Nazi party music formations sounded reveille.

The city was colorful with Swastika flags whipping in the breeze. Brown-shirted storm troopers and black-garbed elite guards thronged the streets.

The entire route from the chancellery to the Opera House was virtually walled with Swastika banners along the Wilhelmstrasse past government buildings, into the historic Unter Den Linden, under Brandenburger gate, across the broad Hindenburg Platz and up Friedensallee.

VOICE CARRIES EVERYWHERE

Flags, banners and green fir trimmings decorated the Opera House. A polished vast gilded eagle and Swastika formed the background for the speaker.

Loud-speaker arrangements were made so that thousands could hear in the streets outside the building.

The 855 brown-shirted deputies forming the Reichstag membership provided a double inspiration for the Chancellor: A sympathetic audience and a personification of his greatest achievement—the annexation of Austria, his homeland, and Czechoslovak Sudetenland.

For the first time since 1848, 73 Austrian and 41 Sudeten deputies were allotted seats beside Prussian colleagues in the Reichstag, membership in which today is the largest numerically in the history of the German people.

'HIS WAY' THEIR WAY'

Whatever the course Hitler had outlined for the seventh year of the "national socialist rising," whether principally internal or another broad step along the trail of his dynamic foreign policy, his followers sang one tune today:

"The route of the Fuehrer is the route of the people."

On the eve of the sixth anniversary of Nazi rule, Labor Front Leader Robert Ley told a Nazi district rally in Stettin that:

"Whoever lives in Germany must breathe the national socialist air . . . the German people has understood the meaning and the results of our national leadership and it knows that the Fuehrer was able to create a corps of leaders which tackles every problem, evades no decision and places the greatest demands upon itself.

"Our belief in the Fuehrer and the party, therefore, is so strong and accompanied with success, because this belief is not wasted in phrases but knows no bounds and transmits itself in obedience."

CALLS HIM "MASTER"

Propaganda Minister Goebbels told German school children "There are new tasks every year" and that "Worries will never end."

His address, broadcast throughout Germany, was part of the celebration of the Nazi anniversary.

He called Hitler the "Master teacher" to whom all German youth look up in veneration and behind whom they rallied in unswerving loyalty.

In a review of Nazi achievements Goebbels said Germany, "honored, but almost feared," rose powerfully, culturally and politically, and added that the German "rebirth was no miracle but a rejuvenation that came out of the stern course of law."

"When we were your age," he said, "we believed in emperors and kings and did not realize the powers within the body of the nation which alone helped us to rise."

Franco Forces In 3-Way Drive For Catalonia

within 37 miles of Gerona, capital of Gerona Province. The city is 52 airmiles northeast of Barcelona, occupied Thursday, and on a main highway to the French frontier.

Insurgent Generalissimo Franco was pushing his drive rapidly with the idea of turning against Valencia and Madrid if complete success in Catalonia does not end the two and a half year war.

Great activity prevailed behind the lines as the Barcelona city council under Mayor Mateu attempted to restore normal conditions.

The first act was to welcome officially the Franco troops. Then every municipal agency was ordered to work at full speed toward the return of normalcy. Buses, street cars and subways began operating on almost regular schedules.

The mayor also ordered every available building be turned over to relief organizations for feeding tens of thousands of half-starved persons.

The Insurgents charged that hundreds of prisoners taken by the government had been subjected to "barbarous terror."

Barcelona Insane Found Starving

Special to Boston American

BARCELONA, Jan. 30—More details of ghastly atrocities committed in a frenzy of terror by Barcelona's Red regime were announced here today by the newly established authorities of General Franco.

Franco headquarters issued a communique describing how most of the inmates of an insane asylum at Reus, near Barcelona, were permitted by the Communist authorities to die a slow death of starvation after they had been deprived of food and water.

The official communique state:

"Of several hundred inmates, including many women, only a few were alive when the Nationalist troops arrived. Those who were still alive were released from the asylum and rushed to Barcelona for care.

"It was estimated to have been several weeks since the inmates had received any food or water. There had evidently been many fights inside the abandoned asylum."

Anarchists Crushed In Spain Border Town

PERPIGNAN, France, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Spanish government was reported today to have smothered an anarchist plot to gain control of the refugee-jammed town, Puigcerda, just across the frontier from France.

Reports reaching the border at Bourg-Madame said a short-lived anarchist revolt was broken up last night.

Heavy snowfall in the mountains during the night slowed up flight of refugees toward the frontier. Sixteen inches had fallen by midmorning and roads were impassable.

The French government decided to send two cabinet members to the frontier to take control of the refugee situation. Minister of Health Rucart and Minister of Interior Sarraut were expected to arrive tomorrow.

Danger of an epidemic among the refugees which might spread to French citizens in the border region was feared. A few cases of typhoid already have been reported.

4 in Manhole, But It's Only To Go Boating

DETROIT, Jan. 30 (AP)—Four boys here didn't let the ice-skating season interfere with their rowing—they used a sewer.

A resident who saw two youngsters disappear into a manhole called police. They found four boys—not just two—calmly propelling a rowboat in a big drain a half mile from the Detroit river.

The boys explained it was their regular winter pastime. They had to forego it today for a date at police headquarters.

"I cannot afford to become bald" says this foreman

"I can't afford to lose my hair—to look old—and take chances on losing my job. The bosses are plenty quick to say, 'Brown's getting old; better train someone to take his job,'" this able foreman says. Unfortunately what he says is true—men who look old because of baldness find it difficult to compete with men who have retained their hair and their youthful appearance.

Don't handicap yourself by becoming or remaining bald. The Thomas' can help you—just as they are helping 1600 other men each day—to get rid of your dandruff, stop your abnormal hairfall, and promote natural hair growth on the thin and bald spots. Twenty years of success with more than a quarter-million cases speaks volumes for the reliable, proved Thomas method of scalp treatment. You'll be surprised, too, at its reasonable cost. Call today for a free scalp examination and learn how Thomas can help you, too, to retain or regain a good head of hair.

W. R. Hearst's Stand On Spain Is Lauded

SAN GABRIEL, Cal., Jan. 30—Amid the priceless treasures of two centuries of California history was solemnly rededicated the hallowed grounds of the San Gabriel Mission cemetery.

At the conclusion of the religious ceremonies Joe Scott, prominent Los Angeles Cahuenga member, delivered the re-dedication address.

"We see before us the flag of the United States and beside it the flag of Spain, the very flag which today floats triumphantly over Barcelona," Scott said.

"The Spanish flag is the flag of General Franco, whose territory is peaceful and well governed, and a place where the Cross is now respected.

"As we contemplate this, we must express our thanks to William Randolph Hearst and his newspapers for the part they have played in placing before the American people the real facts of conditions in Spain.

"Mr. Hearst realizes we can not compromise with Communism. So today as we honor the dead here, we pray Spain soon will be emancipated from Red Moscow."

Scott outlined the history of the Campanario, the oldest burying ground in Los Angeles County, which was first consecrated in 1778, and which has given a resting place to more than 6000 Indians and prominent pioneers of early California.

Nearly 2000 persons witnessed the ceremony.

U. S. JUDGE MUM IN DEWEY PROBE

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (AP)—A double-barreled investigation was under way today into the record of Judge Martin T. Manton of the U. S. circuit court of appeals in the wake of charges by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey that the high-ranking jurist had accepted more than $400,000 from litigants.

In a letter to Representative Hatton W. Sumners, chairman of the House judiciary committee, Dewey charged that $439,481 which he said Manton had received had been paid to Law Motors, Inc., an auto corporation controlled by him.

The district attorney never named Manton in connection with any of the cases involving payments to Law Motors, Inc., but he referred to the jurist as the man who handled the appeals in the cases, Dewey said.

Four of the transactions he cited, Dewey said, involved Manton's action in cases he knew the court of appeals would be asked to review.

Judge Martin T. Manton

"If, upon the foregoing facts, the House of Representatives should assume jurisdiction of this matter," the district attorney wrote, "I am prepared to present evidence before your committee in support thereof."

At the time the details of Judge Manton's affairs were announced in Washington, Attorney General Frank Murphy was in Georgia.

The 58-year-old jurist, appointed by President Wilson as a member of the appeals court, is outranked in the federal judicial hierarchy only by the nine members of the Supreme Court.

Informed of Dewey's charges, Judge Manton said he had known for some time that the district attorney's office was looking into his affairs and added:

"I will make no comment now. I will wait until I have read the full text of Mr. Dewey's letter to the House committee."

Dewey said he had been investigating Judge Manton "in connection with a new law passed by the legislature of the State of New York."

Famous Nun Dies at 93

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 30 (AP)—Mother Beatrice of the Holy Spirit, for 64 years a member of the Carmelite order in this city, died today at the age of 93. Mother Beatrice, a native of Ireland, was the first Carmelite nun in America. Her name before she entered the convent was Ellen Power. Mother Beatrice was the last surviving member of the group of nuns who founded the Carmelite monastery here.

The nun spent 20 years of her life as a cloistered nun. She established branches of the order in Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Santa Cruz, Cal., and Toronto, Ont.

BOSTON AFTER DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Monday Morning Musings:

The sudden swing to the right by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, authors of the star-spangled Broadway smash, "The American Way," leaves this corner somewhat bemused and definitely skeptical of the gentlemen's frankness . . . Their intentions, or sincerity for that matter, perhaps are not so important, because they have announced their plan to devote their profits to the cause of German refugee-relief.

George Holland

Nonetheless, their present dip into the old hokum bucket seems tinctured with a tesce of opportunism . . . "The American Way" was plotted and written when resentment was raging against Hitler's anti-Semitism (Not that it still isn't) when the public was showing a tremendous lack of interest in a revue called "Sing Out the News," a leftish affair financed in part by Messrs. Kaufman and Hart, and touched up as to writing by their deft hands.

That the American way (of conducting government at least) was not the Kaufman-Hart way was indicated clearly in earlier musicals, in which one or the other or both had a hand . . . "Of Thee I Sing," "Let 'Em Eat Cake" and "I'd Rather Be Right" . . . They went the absolute limit in "spoofing" several famous American institutions, including the Supreme Court, the Cabinet and President Roosevelt.

It is the opinion of this writer, that the Messrs. Kaufman and Hart comprise the cleverest playwriting collaboration in the country . . . but before he thrills to the reported soul-stirring finale of "The American Way," [illegible] be heckling himself with the question where were Messrs. Kaufman and Hart when the Communist soap-boxers were holding forth on half the corners in New York"

In New York at least, the American way (of government) was perilously close to being a town joke . . . The American way seemed so ludicrous to a precious group of Broadway playwrights and propaganda artists that sizeable sums of money were spent on such items as the Red "Parade."

But writing patriots are springing up to their country's defense from Broadway to Hollywood, and may yet be discovered in the Federal Theater project in New York . . . It will be a shame if these new Tom-Thumb Minute Men go fickle on us as the news varies from Europe or Washington

Once Over Lightly:

The New York papers are avouring that Head Coach Frank Leahy signed a three-year contract calling for $9000 a year . . . Perhaps Traffic Commissioner William P. Hickey can set Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty right regarding a report which reaches this column that WPA workers are checking on the daily chores of the Boston traffic policemen . . .

Freddie Sullivan, Joe Mulhern, Tom Buckley . . . All candidates for the job of chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and youse takes yer cherce . . . Two of the prominent Democrats, Messrs Mulhern and Buckley, disclaim ambitions for the job . . . Buckley will serve if conscripted . . . The job he wants is that of a Collector of Internal Revenue, but the Paul A. Dever support for J. Henry Cogswell is formidable . . .

This column's guess (a repeat guess as it was mentioned five weeks or so ago) is that Sullivan will get the job . . .

Johnny Carson's Pilots of Rhythm are packing 'em in each Friday night at the Jefferson Club ballroom in Cambridge . . . Edward J. McCormack, brother of the congressman, is priming his comrades of Co. B, 101st Infantry Veterans Association, for a high-gear turnout for the association's annual charity Sports Night and Smoker, March 16 at the Irish American Club, South Boston.

FRANCINE LARRIMORE IN WILBUR PREMIERE

TOP—Francine Larrimore returns to the stage in "What Every Woman Wants," opening tonight at the Wilbur.

CENTER—Richard Carlson, handsome Hollywood juvenile, is featured in "Stars in Your Eyes," in its final week at the Shubert.

BOTTOM—Claire Luce who is blonde dynamite in "Of Mice and Men," in its second and final week at the Plymouth.

'Macbeth' Opens Tomorrow At Copley

By PEGGY DOYLE

Francine Larrimore [illegible] "What Every Woman Wants" opening tonight at the Wilbur, and the Federal Theatre's production of Macbeth staged and acted in the modern manner tomorrow evening at the Copley should enliven the local rialto.

With these two new arrivals Boston's theatrical district will be well lighted for the Dwight Deere Wiman musical comedy "Stars In Your Eyes" with Jimmy Durante and Ethel Merman and "Of Mice and Men," John Steinbeck's New York Drama Critics' Circle award play for 1938, are remaining at the Shubert and the Plymouth respectively for another and final week.

"What Every Woman Wants" described as a [illegible] comedy by Susan Kelly and Esther Forbes in a Lee Ephraim production presenting the [illegible] Miss Larrimore as the [illegible] landed estate in New England of the Puritan days.

A native son who has been successful in Hollywood Don Terry of Natick, plays opposite Miss Larrimore.

The authors are New England born. One of them Miss Forbes has five successful novels dealing New England to her credit.

Although "Macbeth" will be presented as written, the unusual manner staging and staging by Elliot Davis, remembered for his modern treatment of Dr. Faustus [illegible] the season when [illegible] fall flat in the hands of [illegible] versions Boston has witnessed.

Be prepared to view Tuesday night's Macbeth as [illegible] does], as a "thriller."

The inimitable team of Durante and Merman are sure to sell out the Shubert where they are presently appearing in J. P. McEvoy's entertaining "Stars In Your Eyes" Ballet's Tamara Toumanova and Hollywood's Richard Carlson are featured performers.

"Of Mice and Men" John Steinbeck's fine dramatization of his brilliant novel which last season won the New York Drama Critics Circle award for the best American play, is in its second and final week at the Plymouth.

Guy Robertson and Edward Andrews are playing George and Lennie, the itinerant California farm hands or "bindle stiffs," the roles originated on Broadway by Wallace Ford and Broderick Crawford. Claire Luce plays Curley's wife, the same role she had in the original company.

RUTH DRAPER as a "Scottish Immigrant," one of her internationally famous character sketches which she will present at the Plymouth for one week beginning next Monday.

STAGE PLAYS

Ruth Draper's Art Amazes

Pantomime has long been considered the greatest art in the theater but probably no one in the [illegible] century has [illegible] this art to the point which Ruth Draper has in her famous character sketches" [illegible] Draper is coming to Boston for the first time in several years at the Plymouth Theater on Monday, February 6, for a week's engagement. The ticket agency is [illegible] today.

This versatile performer who, as everybody knows writes her own material, promptly changes her personality and her countenance in the [illegible] of an eye right before [illegible]

Valerie Parks Howard Star

Valerie Parks heading her own stream lined revue, Legs and Laughter, this week at the Old Howard is known to [illegible] many local admirers as one of burlesque's most [illegible] dancers.

She brings a new dances and a company of pretty girls boisterous buffoons and songs you never heard before but will not forget to remember. Her [illegible] is "The Blind Moth."

Valerie Parks featured dancer

Included in her company are Crystal Cook, Patricia Joyce, Harry (Boob) Myers, Smith Rogers and Eddy; the Four Stepsons, Franklyn Hopkins and a chorus of 30 song-and-dance girls.

Booked for Colonial

Gertrude Lawrence last seen here co-starring with Noel Coward in his successful "Tonight at 8:30" returns Monday evening February 13, in the New York hit, "Susan and God."

Miss Lawrence and the Rachel Crothers' play about religion and a trivial lady have been enjoying a tremendous triumph on their current trans-continental tour, which included a 14-week engagement in Chicago, and correspondingly long runs in San Francisco, et cetera.

In Ottawa, where Miss Lawrence plays on Monday, February 6, for a single performance under the auspices of His Excellency, the Governor-General of Canada, not a ticket has been available for the past two weeks.

"THAT'S MY LANGUAGE!"

WHEN THE WORLD WAR broke out in Europe two decades ago Americans were wisely advised to keep their own countenances of course BEING NEUTRAL by ACTING neutrally and THINKING neutrally.

Many Americans flouted that advice some to make money others to satisfy warring emotions, others to voice their hates.

That was the seed of a condition and a spirit which foreign-inspired propaganda fanned into WAR FLAMES.

And America will still be paying the price for scores of years to come.

With the war hypnosis again sweeping the hysterical Old World let Americans heed the good advice this time. Let them BE neutral. AcT neutrally and THINK neutrally.

MOTORISTS PROTEST Governor Saltonstall's proposal in raise in the tax on gasoline. The motorists are wise.

Automobile owners have had too sorrowful an experience with this type of assessment not to fear it.

A generation ago, when the gasoline tax was invented, the levy was supposed to be temporary.

But, chiefly because it was easily collected, politicians found it most attractive, and instead of repealing it, doubled it and later trebled it.

And now Legislators are told that a few alterations in the law will enable government to extract a total of $41,250,000 from Massachusetts motorists.

This includes the suggested gasoline tax increase, excise payments and registration fees. BUT IT DOES NOT INCLUDE THE SOARING COST OF COMPULSORY INSURANCE!

Little wonder our automobile-owning public cries "HALT!"

PATRIOTIC BOSTON applauds American Legion National Commander Chadwick's ringing defense of the Dies Congressional Committee.

Patriotic Boston agrees with this outstanding leader when he says:

"The Committee's official report on subversive activities in this country was one of the finest ever made by a committee in Washington."

That is the view not only of Boston, of Massachusetts, of New England but also of the ENTIRE United States.

The recent survey by the Impartial Gallup Poll showing 74 PER CENT OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE in favor of the Dies Committee is convincing proof.

A THIRD TERM for our Presidents is opposed to our traditions but what are traditions to hundreds of thousands of office seekers who dream of holding jobs in perpetuity?

It almost seems as if a third term is being forced on Mr. Roosevelt. But it is not easily that it is being forced upon him by THE PEOPLE HE CONTROLS.

The man who is leading the losing band for the third term is Harold L. Ickes. Mr. Ickes is Secretary of the Interior, and, no doubt, he would have no objection of getting a nice job on that job even if it lasted only "one little term."

HOTEL GIRLS receive good advice from Isabel Ingalls, whose Miss B K Cobb's Training a waitress' editorial says:

"Don't have a long face, don't correct staff before other staff, don't be quiet or aloof, above all don't gossip or nag."

To girls in occupations that emphasize it won't be a waitress' training, but it will be used upon all the table. Surely no wife-to-be can resist such animated sunshine.

That's the application, that Why restrict the advice to hotel girls? Couldn't we all do with a liberal serving of that charm?

The Human Side of the News

Today's World Demands Ability

By EDWIN C. HILL

Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THERE WAS a day when a good waitress was a brisk neat girl who brought you what you ordered, without too much delay, and set it down without pouring soup down your collar. That was about par for the course and nobody thought of elaborating these simple requirements.

That slack day is past. Nothing is simple any more. In this year's competition among the New York hotels to select the "Queen of Trays" the contest is on the basis of a) wholesomeness, b) intelligence, c) knowledge of dietetics, d) ability to handle people.

THE MOST wholesome waitress I ever saw once slid a big slab of open-face plum pie upside down on the lap of my new summer suit. The best waitress of my experience was not too intelligent when it came to anything outside the deft skill and understanding of her trade.

Once in my extra-young days I returned from a horseback ride with a friend with my riding gear on a small fortune and stopped at the swimming meet in Boston on the way home. The next day I missed my riding togs and was pretty sad. I had left them at the restaurant.

The noon hour rush was on when I slipped in quite. The cashier kissed in sight and I signaled my favorite waitress, jogging a mountain of dishes near the desk.

"Will you ask the cashier if anyone found a package with a pair of puttees and a khaki jacket on it?"

"Hey Ma," she yelled over the heads of the multitude and all their gustatory din, "they's a jay here says he lost a pound of putty and po'tage of commercial."

At that she was the best waitress in the place but I suppose then would find her now on the route of "trays to handle people." For a hot cup of tea I bet I was going to need a lot of training.

THE NEW [illegible] for waitresses is a result of a number of letters commenting on our one-minute broadcasts. I think the [illegible] more conversation in the air on [illegible] and less [illegible] particularly on the subject than anywhere else. When you drop into these attractive little places occasionally, you are impressed by the charm and service facet of the cashier, who has the air of a hostess rather than of a business woman.

After a few turns on this circuit you get to know that this one is Bryn Mawr and the other one Wellesley.

Skating Enthusiasts Make Merry

MEMBERS of the Boston Skating Club had a chance to enjoy both their favorite sport and the traditional New England supper of baked beans and brown bread Saturday . . . at the first evening party since the new Cambridge building has been open . . . Everyone sat around with a plate of beans on his lap and watched exhibitions skating by nationally known ice stars enrolled in the club's membership . . . After dessert the men played an amusing hockey game using brooms and soccer balls in place of hockey sticks and pucks . . . Room then on the rink was given over to skating and dancing for a while everyone had a chance to join in the fun and it was not long before a spectator party . . .

Perhaps the best item of the program came at the end of exhibitions by such talented younger skaters as Betty Nichols, national junior champion, Jane Ellis, Dorothy and Leslie Glazier . . . Great cheers and shouts of bravo went up from the crowd when "Joan Tozer" national women's champion, and her doubles partner "Bernard Fox" were announced . . . but the cheers turned to appreciative laughter when, in place of Joan and Bernard, Grace and Jimmie Madison, darlings of Boston skating fans, came out in crazy costumes and skated a comic takeoff . . . Joan and Bernard are the club's most famous members . . .

Junior Philomatheia Groups Discuss Penny Sale Plans

No less than a hundred enthusiastic Junior Philomatheia members descended on the clubhouse yesterday to sip tea and make plans for the huge penny sale, always the outstanding feature of the club's early spring [illegible].

Mrs. Byron G. Tosi, senior adviser to the group, was the hostess, her madonna blue woolen dress combined with tufted blue velvet ascot, a mink-trimmed hat completing her ensemble.

Assisting her were her two sisters, Mary in a cute little bolero frock of aquamarine wool, and Angela in a smartly-tailored teal blue crepe.

Mrs. Charles McCarthy, another senior advisor attended, her pale blue cape dress sporting rhinestone buttons.

The interior of the chalet buzzed with many exciting plans for the sale scheduled for March 27 in the Boston College auditorium.

Presiding at the tea tables were the club's officers, Virginia Grimes, Frances O'Halloran, Dorothy Winslow Crannell, Elizabeth [illegible] and Mary C. McCarthy.

West Roxbury Group to Dance

Mrs. John J. Connell, president of the West Roxbury Catholic Woman's Club, will be hostess at a buffet dinner party preceding the club's annual supper dance Friday evening at the Hotel Somerset.

Mrs. John McKenna, who will entertain a large group at her table, will also be among the evening's dinner hostesses. Others who will entertain at dinner before coming on to dance at the Somerset are Mrs. John McGowan, Mrs. Charles Leonard, Mrs. John Scanlon, Mrs. Edmond Donlon and Mrs. George Paul Smith.

Heading the list of reservations is Mrs. Francis Brady, while others who will attend the party are Mrs. John W. Cosgrove, Jr., Mrs. John T. Donovan, Mrs. Thomas A. Clifford, Mrs. William T. School Teachers To Give Operetta

Schoolroom problems have been forgotten by Cambridge teachers in the hectic whirl of preparing for their annual operetta, "Pirates of Penzance," being presented [illegible] Saturday night in the Gymnasium of Rindge Technical School. Hugh Curry, faculty member of Boston University and Rindge Technical School, is directing the production.

[illegible] will be portrayed by Alan Cohen, John Toomey, Robert Sweeney, Raymond Scott, Mary O'Keefe, Edna Deseller and [illegible] Wise.

All of General Stanley's pretty [illegible] will be played by a talented corps of school teachers — Eileen Barrett, Anna Bateman, [illegible] Bedell, Charlotte Curnes, Ethel Hodman, Ann Curry, Mary Keohane, Margaret Mulqueeney, Mary Redica and Mary Supple.

General chairman of the committee is Joseph C. Sullivan, whose aides include Anna O'Connell and Loretta Maguire. A group of teachers under direction of Frances Musgrave will sell candy.

SYMPHONY CONCERTS FOR YOUNG FOLK

Mrs. Wheeler Beckett, who has proved such an attractive and helpful addition to the Community Fund work in Boston, will have the pleasure of seeing her husband continue his admirable work in creating a widespread interest in classical music among young people.

Mr. Beckett will conduct the second series of Youth Symphony Concerts in Symphony Hall, beginning February 15. The concerts are open to junior high and high school students, and adults cannot attend unless accompanied by the youthful music lovers. A prominent group of society folk act as sustaining members to help meet expenses not covered in the nominal subscription price.

What [illegible] a bride-to-be say at her shower? Should she make a speech.

P.

1. The guest of honor at the farewell party might say something like this: "You dear friends, all my life I shall carry warmth in my heart the precious memory of this party that you have so beautifully planned for me. It was a grand party . . . thank you for every minute of it. It was difficult enough before for me to say goodbye to all you kind friends . . . but now after this happy expression of your friendship, it is even more difficult. I am deeply touched by your goodness to me . . . thank you again and bless you."

2. It isn't necessary or custom for the bridegroom to make a speech at the shower given in his honor. What she does do and should do most graciously is to say how to-do for each gift as she opens it. A day or two following the shower the appreciative bride writes a note of thanks to each [illegible].

BEAUTY AD MAKES CLINKER SEE RED

What Has Happened:

Tully Clinker, handsome chemist, invents a kiss-proof lipstick for Flora Brent, a co-worker. Berwith Jones, kissing Flo at a dance, discovers the lipstick's merits, realizes his cosmetics firm needs it, and sends Petra Gann, vampish publicity woman, to entrap Clinker into selling the formula. Miss Gann succeeds. But Flora Brent prevents the transfer. F. F. Stringer, Clinker's employer, sells the formula, and Clinker receives a huge fortune. Attending the opening of Jones' beauty salon, Clinker meets Bernard Marshak, wealthy financier.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER EIGHT

Twenty minutes after leaving Financier Bernard Marshak, Tully walked alone back to 53rd street. He was still the sole and undisputed owner of 6000 shares of Cinderella stock. He had no idea that such sums of money could become involved with a piece of lipstick, and he was feeling dazed.

Also he was feeling cantankerous, because he had sincerely not wanted and did not want, to compromise his expectations in life with financial tumefaction.

He reflected, as the north wind whipped him down Fifth avenue, that he owed it to two women, to Petra Gann because she had diddled him by kissing him as a matter of business, and to Flora Brent because she had developed an emotional interest in a chemical formula and had butted in just when he was about to get rid of the darned thing.

He stopped to loosen the wrist [illegible] wanted to do was get [illegible] and relieve [illegible] Flora. [illegible] treatment with her.

The restaurant at the [illegible] Lexington was full without [illegible] Marshak in front of the [illegible] joint. There were still a few [illegible] off starting and [illegible] around a little group. He [illegible] at strangers silly and [illegible] to the girl.

He knew he was going to be rude and he was. In the second [illegible] worked up to Petra with [illegible] people and [illegible] coffee.

"YOURS, SPECIAL"

"Can we go pretty soon?" she excused herself and took [illegible] aside.

"I'm sorry, Tully," she said with [illegible] fingers on his sleeve. "If it was anyone else I'd say I was too tired to [illegible] and beg off, but you're something pretty special with me and I wouldn't even tell you as small a lie as that."

The fact is that Mr. Marshak is having a little dinner, only four of us, and he insisted on my coming and I didn't feel that I was in a position to refuse."

"Tra la la," said Tully and pivoted on his heel and departed.

After eating a plate of pork chops and potatoes at a place on 54th street he didn't feel like going to the laboratory, so he went home and read in the December number of the Chemistry Gazette. None of the articles seemed to be much good.

Tully always prepared his own breakfast, a large glass of orange juice, and two cups of coffee with two chocolate eclairs, and ate it standing in the kitchenette.

With it he consumed a portion of the morning Times—the front page headlines, morsels of the interior, and all of the sport pieces which had to do with prizefights and prizefighters.

There wasn't quite enough room [illegible] the kitchenette table, so he did [illegible] chair and was [illegible] to [illegible].

MR. CINDERELLA!

[illegible] started. Scrambled [illegible] did it do it? Well, [illegible] cup of coffee in [illegible] tried to [illegible] with the first [illegible] made a startled [illegible] and spilled some of the coffee and sent the paper over the edge.

He set the cup [illegible] retrieved the paper and [illegible] the printed letters [illegible] of it, [illegible] a picture of Tully Clinker in his white apron [illegible] with a [illegible] girl, directed at the [illegible] verse.

By Heavens it [illegible] Tully frowned. With compressed lips and in a [illegible] state he took in the copy. Across the top was the bold-face invitation:

Meet Mr. Cinderella!

At the left of the picture was the vertical declaration.

SCIENCE SERVES BEAUTY

And the picture's right, also vertical:

BEAUTY BOWS TO SCIENCE

Below, it stated with calm certitude.

The most glamorous, romantic spot on earth today is the laboratory of Tully Clinker, Chem. E., Sc. D., Ph. D., whose picture is above.

This week, this month, this year, and for years to come, thousands of beautiful girls and women will be more beautiful BECAUSE OF HIM.

Thousands of girls and women, not quite beautiful, will become so BECAUSE OF HIM.

He deserves, we think, to be introduced to you—to Paris and London and New York, to Palm Beach and Hollywood and New Orleans, to cities and towns and villages on the rivers of the world and in the valleys and on the mountains, as

MR. CINDERELLA!

For it is his ASTOUNDING secret patented formula, his truly revolutionary discovery, that has made it possible for us to offer you today, and for all days to come: Cinderella Creams, Cinderella Lipstick, Cinderella Rouge, Cinderella Perfumes, Cinderella Bath Preparations, Cinderella Nail Enamels, Cinderella Shampoos, Cinderella Soaps, Cinderella Waters, Cinderella Powders.

Tully, his lips still compressed, folded the paper and tossed it into the rubbish basket, got a cloth to wipe up the spilled coffee, and poured himself a second cup.

Living alone as he did, he had formed a habit of speaking aloud [illegible] For this time there seemed [illegible] good enough [illegible] to [illegible] utterance.

He banged the door as he left on his way to work.

TULLY BLAMES FLORA

Arriving at the laboratory [illegible] going straight to the [illegible] as usual, he proceeded to the front office. Good man, Curry was already there, cleaning his old-fashioned inkwell at the sink and Flora Brent just divested of her wraps, was busy at the combination of the safe. Tully tramped across to her.

"Did you see that ad?" he demanded of her back.

She twisted her head around. "Good morning. What ad?"

"That thing in the Times. That Cinderella thing."

"I don't read the Times. I saw an ad in the Daily News with a picture of you."

A giggle and a splutter came from old man Curry. "That's where I saw it," he said, approaching with a gleam in his eye as he wiped the inkwell with a piece of cheesecloth. "The News. Double page. They used to say that Lord Byron woke up one morning to find himself famous, but my gracious, the circulation of the News—"

"It was you who suggested the name Cinderella," Tully told Flora savagely, ignoring the bookkeeper.

"I know it." She pulled the safe door open. "Don't you think I should get a royalty?"

"It was also you who started this business. By kissing Berwith Jones. Then by setting him on me. Then by butting in when I was getting rid of it. Then by refusing to take any of the money and declining to accept that watch—"

"That has nothing to do with it."

"Everything has something to do with it. It was you I made the formula for in the first place. Then you got an emotional interest in it—"

"Who?" I got a what?"

"An emotional interest. Stringer says Stringer is right. That's why we closed that day. It was on account of you. I mean your crying that I asked Stringer to go ahead and [illegible]. The whole thing is [illegible]."

She was [illegible] color. "Mr. Stringer says I [illegible] emotional? Ha ha ha."

"You can ha ha ha all you want to, but the fact remains that it's your fault. Now you see what happens. You may think that ad's funny, but I don't. It makes a clown out of me. It makes me a simpering idiot, and while I may be an idiot I'll be darned if I simper."

"THAT'S TOO BAD!"

"Then why did you let it appear?"

"I let it appear? Do you think for a minute—"

"You must have. Doesn't your friend Miss Gann handle the publicity?"

"If you think—"

"Didn't you let her send the photographer here to take the pictures?"

"No. Not for that purpose. She told me—"

"You really didn't know the picture was going to be used as an ad?"

"I did not."

"I see." Flora regarded him, screwing up her lips. "So that's why you're so mad. You're not mad at me at all, you're mad at Miss Gann because she made a clown out of you without letting you know. That's too bad. Poor Pagliacci! My lord, you certainly [illegible]

For Kid Aspirants; An Analysis of News Work

ONE OF THE PERPLEXITIES OF this sport pillar is what to do about the voluminous inquiries which come from readers on topics ranging from the girth of Lefty Grove's thigh to the present whereabouts of Babe Ruth. Most of the letters enclose a 3-cent stamp and beg a prompt reply.

AUSTEN LAKE

One wishes to be obliging in such matters, both great and small, but it stumps me how to learn the girth of Grove's upper leg without travelling to Lanaconing, Md. Such items are never mentioned in the paper-back encyclopedias which form the desk library of every sport author.

But the most frequent appeals come from youths of school age, wishful to be told how to become writers on a metropolitan sport staff, and usually enclosing a sample-manuscript of the candidates' literary skill with requests, please, to scan it for sales value. The lads add wistful postscripts that the life is appealing, the work congenial, and it offers a nice way to earn a wage while occupying the best ringside seats without cost.

[illegible] IS THE PROMPTNESS OF [illegible] which [illegible] a life [illegible] the newspaper [illegible] to talking [illegible] will climb a [illegible] to get the facts [illegible] a story. They [illegible] squinting through [illegible] cigarette smoke [illegible] on easy terms with every [illegible] to [illegible] an accurate picture. Most of the newspeople [illegible] are seasoned adults who follow the same [illegible] routine [illegible] They like to spend their leisure puttering around [illegible] or tinkering with the car or plumbing, or [illegible] the mysteries and kinks [illegible] a model. If they are members of the [illegible] beat, such [illegible] to cover the waterfront, [illegible] police beeps and [illegible] [illegible] of divorce and murder courts with the same imperturbable [illegible] a butcher shows [illegible]

BUT DON'T LET US KID OURSELVES. There are some frowsy reporters in the business. But then, you don't expect to meet royalty, or even the old Southern type of aristocracy in the city or sport rooms. Because, for one thing, that kind would not have what it takes to be good, go-getting reporters.

So, in between the frowsies, of which there are just barely a few, and the Harvard Ph.D.'s, of which there are even fewer, there is the sound, alert type of reporters who have learned not to get thrown down on a job just because the assignment may be repugnant to their finer feelings. If their work requires them to sit on an icy doorstep and get pushed around by some broken-English butler, they are just the vulgarians to do it. Some remarkably fine writers have graduated from the ranks to the field of higher letters. They did it by perspiration and mental endurance, not by pictorial foolishness.

LEAHY WELL GROUNDED IN GRID FUNDAMENTALS

Welcome To Boston Frank Leahy, Boston College's new football coach, is shown with his wife and kiddies. The B. C. mentor has baby Sue on his lap while Mrs. Leahy is holding Junior. The Leahys will soon take up their residence in Boston.

To Install New System at B. C.

By BILL GRIMES

Apparently the rumors which had Boston [illegible] the market for a big name coach were about as [illegible] the hundreds of erroneous predictions concerning [illegible] to Old Dobie.

After scouring the country for [illegible] of the season Boston College chiefs Frank Leahy as its new head coach.

To the rank and file of football [illegible] Frank Leahy is unknown. He's starting out a "big name" coach. However, he is [illegible] and other fast men to the Boston College gridiron. Leahy and the experts at that school feel [illegible] to the task of putting [illegible] for the Frank Leahy [illegible] for he has been [illegible] the years. [illegible] Big names were [illegible] were made the [illegible] football departments.

Frank Leahy has served seven years under Jim Crowley as line coach. And in that time he proved [illegible] technique in the fundamentals of the game from Knute Rockne during the three years he was on the Notre Dame squad [illegible] Leahy [illegible]

[illegible] Why not Frank Leahy?

Leahy has the [illegible] of a winning team. [illegible] Thomas and [illegible] Notre Dame [illegible]

What [illegible] ask.

Frank has [illegible] Rockne's system [illegible] Warner system [illegible] While [illegible] no offense [illegible] of the high calibre of backs, can be successful.

LINE COACHES IN DEMAND

Back field coaches, due to the limitations in that department are a dime a dozen but line coaches of the Frank Leahy type are in great demand. It was Frank Leahy's seven lines of stone-like [illegible] at Fordham that split the Rams up with the opinion of [illegible] experts of the country.

Frank Leahy will be glad to [illegible] a few scrubs at B. C. [illegible] has been added to the Notre Dame system [illegible] but he has [illegible] sufficient seasoning for Jim Crowley to possess a thorough knowledge of all [illegible] offensive plays. He plans to hold a six week spring practice season and the type of Eagles available will determine the style of play that the new mentor will adopt.

Frank Leahy's football career at Notre Dame was a great struggle against handicaps that in the end proved to be overwhelming.

Before the 1929 season opened Frank Leahy suffered a shoulder injury that forced him out of action for part of the year and slowed him up for the remainder of the season. He resumed play before his injury was entirely healed, only to come up with a severely sprained ankle. Despite these dis-

And now Frank Leahy is on his own. And, although he may be an unknown, Frank Leahy has the stuff to be a "big name" coach before he severs connections with Boston College.

HUB SIX LOSES IN MAINE

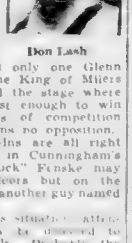
LEWISTON Me., Jan. 30 (AP)—It was an ill fated week end invasion of Maine for the Spaulding Moss hockey team of Boston. The Bay Staters dropped a 3-2 ardict to the Lewiston Cyclones here in their first tilt, and yesterday suffered a 4-3 reverse at the hands of the St. Dom's Club.

Hollis 600 Feature on BAA Card

By MURRAY KRAMER

Boston's first [illegible] left a very pleasant taste [illegible] track fans last Saturday and indications are that the coming B. A. A. games [illegible] week from Saturday night will not [illegible] lure as many if not more fet lowers.

The Prout Memorial games were a forerunner of just what to expect.



Don Lash

First and foremost is the fact that there's still only one Glenn Cunningham. The King of Milers has now reached the stage where he runs only fast enough to win and after years of competition there still remains no opposition.

The Blaine twins are all right but they're not in Cunningham's class while "Chuck" Fenske may be a wow outdoors but on the boards he's just another guy named Charles.

Because of this situation attention may finally be directed to different channels. Probably the greatest event in the B. A. A. games will be the Hollis 600.

Last Saturday night a newcomer to indoor wars announced that he will meet all on even terms. This invader is Harold Cagle of Oklahoma Baptist.

Traveling over the boards for the first time, he took such opposition as Wesley Wanner, undefeated in three major meets until Saturday; Jimmy Herbert, winner of the Prout 600 for the past two years, and Dick Gil, who is running better than at any time in his career.

Salvation's Quints Play in Worcester

Similar to a traveling three ring circus, the Salvation Army basketball league teams, six of them, will move into Worcester tomorrow night to play three games at the Knights of Columbus gymnasium.

The fast moving Cambridge quintet, with three straight victories, will play the Boston Palace team; Lynn, also undefeated, will contend against Medford, while Providence will take on Brockton. The seventh team of the league, Waltham, is idle.

Jack Kearns After Hogue Twins | Frank Leahy Is Good B. C. Chiice

By JACK CONWAY

JACK KEARNS IS trying to sign "Big Boy" Hogue and "Shorty" Hogue, Irish-Cherokee Indians from Los Angeles, who won in the 147 and 160-pound classes at the Hearst All-America grand national finals in Detroit . . .The Hogue twins are aggressive, two-fisted fighters of the Mickey Walker type.

Mr. Boston

I thought Dominic Perfetti, 118-pounder from Albany who was a member of the Eastern team, had more boxing class than any boxer in the Detroit tournament . . . Tony Ferry of Fall River was the best of the heavyweights even though he didn't win his semi-final . . . Tony was suffering from a severe cold as well as an injury to one of his feet . . . It was the opinion of Arthur Martell, coach of the California team, that Ferry was entitled to the decision over Jimmy Lane of Los Angeles in their semi-final match.

Tony Davis of Providence was one of the hits of the show . . . Tex Cowan beat the decision Tommy Olivarri of San Antonio received over Davis . . . The latter lost the first round, and won the second and third sessions easily . . . Davis is one of 21 children and says that when it is time for him to eat his mother calls No. 10 . . . James Edgar of Detroit, 135 champion, was pitted against at his best to dispose of Domenic DeCiantis of Providence . . . Edgar is a colored youngster and is one of the sharpest punching amateurs I have ever seen in action . . . Al Priest gave Big Boy Hogue tough opposition.

James Hayes of Roxbury had the misfortune to injure his right hand while training with Tony Ferry, and so couldn't release his best Stanley punch . . . At that Lawrence Chatman of Milwaukee worked in the 175-pound division, had all he could do to outpoint Hayes . . . With two good dukes, Hayes would have won.

Johnny Delsanno, who represented the East in the 126 pound division, proved he is a good fighter when he easily won from Tony Ancona of Detroit . . . George Freeman of the Irish American A. A. did a fine job handling members of the Eastern team . . . The All Eastern championships will be staged in Boston once more next December with the grand national finals going to Detroit.

Frank Leahy and Boston College

I BELIEVE Frank Leahy has the necessary background as a football player to give Boston College a winning eleven next fall . . . Leahy's competitive spirit will fire the Eagles with a desire to soar to the heights in the gridiron game . . . John Curtis and the other Boston College athletic authorities were anxious to get their new coach signed before the Boston College dinner on Wednesday night.

Bill Grimes once more proved he is the greatest sports reporter in town on spot news when he "scooped" everybody with his announcement that Frank Leahy is the new boss of the Eagles . . . Grimes' exclusive story, which was published in this newspaper early last Saturday morning, caused the Boston College athletic department to announce the signing of Leahy earlier than it originally planned . . . Merely another case of where one must read the sports pages of the Boston Evening American to keep out front in the matter of big athletic news.

Back from Detroit Harry Kelley tells me Henry Chmielewski, [illegible] looked sensational as he punched out a victory over [illegible] Morgan in a six-round bout on the Lou Ambers-Pete [illegible] card . . . Chmielewski tosses punches faster than any [illegible] to the front in recent years . . . In the Morgan bout the Polish star proved he can take a healthy belt on the [illegible]

[illegible] Pittsburgh lightweight, told me in New York last week [illegible] to come to Boston for a bout with Lou Brouillard [illegible] middleweight champion when the latter returns from his European tour . . . Cohen is battling Fred Apostoli [illegible] in a return bout over the 15-round distance at New York Garden on February 10 . . . Billy's left hand [illegible] will be all right by the time he enters the [illegible]

[illegible] time has been added to those who may be "The Sphinx" [illegible] get a real line on Gus Sonnenberg's present ability when the former grid champion clashes with Ernie Dusek at the Garden [illegible] night . . . Bill Corum sent a hello to Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko [illegible] . . . Wren [illegible] . . . Jack [illegible]

Jock Malone Now in Detroit

TOMMY WALL, [illegible] manage Jack Malone, dropped down to [illegible] the Olympics in Detroit to give the lad a going over and [illegible] be remembered to Harry Kelley and [illegible] in Boston . . . Tommy and Jack Kearns have Tony Canzoneri [illegible] Mike Brown of Washington in Detroit on February [illegible] . . . Word says Jock Malone is working with "Kid" McCoy in the [illegible] at Detroit.

Rosses Win for Bruins

Referee Lamport Banishes Goal Judge

By BILL GRIMES

Manager "Red" Dutton is poor [illegible] today.

He is telling everyone the 3 to 2 victory that the Bruins foisted on his Americans last night in Madison Square Garden was due to the fact that Lou Ross family ganged up [illegible] his star spangled hockey warriors.

Art Ross was back on the Bruins bench for the first time in a week and a Bernard Ross was one of the goal judges.

Art was [illegible] but [illegible] the Boston victory. And not to be outdone by his namesake, Bernie Ross flashed the little red light in the opening period and Referee Lamport awarded Eddie Shore a goal which broke a 1 to 1 tie.

Between them, the Rosses had Dutton running a fever all evening.

BERNIE ON WAY OUT

Immediately after he pushed the red light button for Shore's goal, Bernie Ross was on his way out. Manager Dutton and Earl Robertson, the Americans goalie, protested vehemently.

They claimed that the puck didn't enter the cage. Dutton raved for more than 10 minutes and refused to allow the game to continue until he had had his say, which must have been a classic.

It looks like Nels Stewart (No. 6) of the Americans is about to put the puck into the Bruins net at Madison Square Garden last night but Goalie Brimsek stepped back fast enough to block the shot.

The trouble started when Lamport recalled the goal that Shore caged when he fired his own rebound back into the goal. His first shot, according to Goal Judge Bernie Ross, rebounded off the metal base of the cage. Lamport apparently didn't see the red light [illegible] when Shore banged the [illegible] to allow the goal, [illegible] Eddie was in the [illegible]

When the goal judge indicating [illegible] had scored and the referee [illegible] the puck for a [illegible] to be wondered at that Manager Dutton flew [illegible] out of control.

DUTTON OUT OF ORDER

After the long argument Dutton [illegible] Lamport [illegible] Ross but the other [illegible] the Ross family played along and the Bruins won their [illegible] from a team on the Americans this season.

The Dutton Lamport-B. Ross argument did warrant peculiar rallying with the fight between Bill "Flash" Hollett and Nels Stewart late in the second period. They were facing off when, for some reason, Stewart took a punch at Hollett. Punches flew thick and fast for a few minutes, but finally the battlers were pried apart by players and officials.

Apparently, Hollett was not satisfied, for just as soon as he was loose, he went after Stewart again. They were given five-minute sentences, and then were informed that because they had refused to stop for the referee they were out for the remainder of the game.

Bostonian Wins Squash Honors

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (AP)—H Sherman Howes Jr of Boston won the third annual invitation squash tournament of the Union Club with a straight sets victory over [illegible] of the Yale Club, New York, 15—10, 15—7, 15—12.

Howes' smashing service dominated the match after a delayed start in which Rogers ran up an 8 to 4 lead in the first set. Then the Boston star won 10 consecutive points and never again was in trouble.

In the semi-finals earlier Howes defeated Sam Cochrane of the University Club, New York, who was forced to default when struck by a ball. Howes was leading at the time 15—8, 15—8, 2—0.

[illegible] a 15—13, 15—11, 15—8 victory over Frank Appleton of Harvard University in the other semi-final.

THE LETTER-WRITING KIDS AT SO-AND-SO [illegible] a course in a School of journalism is open-sesame to the newspaper field. Again I don't know! For it is one of the profe[illegible] graduates seldom crash a metropolitan staff out of [illegible] background bashfully considered.

But creative writing, [illegible] is learned by sheer muscular [illegible] expressions, only self punishment and [illegible] or the imagination from whence it springs.

The schools of journalism do not teach a scholar the round-about methods of getting the facts when direct approach has failed, or how to make and keep news contacts, or how to interview a victim painlessly, or how to sift the fact from fake, or how to concentrate amid the rattle of squirrel-cage distraction, etc., etc. The best that a journal school gives is a dash of artistic [illegible] and a smidgeon of mechanics. Which, perhaps, is why the graduate office boy makes the best newsman. He has no romantic [illegible] job.

LOVER AND FIGHTER -:- KID McCOY'S OWN STORY

Kid McCoy in Fighting Prime

Kid Lone Wolf at 17; Gets First Ring Money

The widely traveled Kid McCoy being taken to Los Angeles court for hearing on a charge of murder. McCoy was charged with killing Mrs. Teresa Mors, wealthy Los Angeles shop owner.

Kid McCoy With Eighth Wife,

Beginning his eventful life story in yesterday's Boston Sunday Advertiser, Kid McCoy told of running away from home to escape a spanking in school. "I didn't fit; I was an odd duck," he explained. Handy with his fists as a boy, he learned never to turn his face in a fight. His prowess won him his first sweetheart and his first "unforgettable" kiss. As a newsboy he saw John L. Sullivan. To him, John L. was a super-man. Followed prosperous days as a railroad call boy, and then a most disconcerting incident in which figured two women, an irate wife and her husband's sweetheart.

CHAPTER II

By KID McCOY

as told to LEE J. SMITS

(Copyright by Boston Evening American and Kings Features Syndicate)

I FIGHT FOR MONEY

THERE I sat in the superintendent's office, facing him and two women—the wife and sweetheart of my friend, Buck. No matter what I said or didn't say, I was in for it.

"Do you know this woman?" the superintendent asked, pointing to the lady friend.

I shook my head.

The lady smiled. She was the coolest of the three of us. I saw my $125-a-month job gone glimmering, the job as call boy that made me the richest kid in Indianapolis. The wife settled everything by jumping from her chair and screaming:

"He's a dirty little liar, and what's more, he lies about the men! He says they're sick when they're drunk. He helps them cover up their dirty, low, mean tricks and everybody knows it."

Sometimes it pays to stand and fight, other times to run.

"I guess I'm through," I said, and ducked out of the office. An angry wife has always sent the chills down my spine. I never figured out how they managed to get the other woman into the conference.

Lone Wolf at 17

Now began, at 17, an era of wandering up and down and back and forth across the country. I was a lone wolf, usually. I despised the common hoboes that stuck to freight trains and prided myself on beating passenger trains everywhere. My technic was to grab the tail end of a train as it was pulling out and hide myself until the conductor had passed.

One of my favorite hiding spots was the space between two seats turned back to back. Passengers were almost always willing to help me. But whether or not they were willing, I made use of their ticket stubs by copping them from their hat bands.

I worked in poolrooms and restaurants and got to be a pool shark. I knew all the tricks of that game, and was more than a match for the average player. Pool playing helped my eye and judgment of distance in boxing, I have always believed.

One time I was beating my way into Indianapolis and in the car were the Drake brothers, well-known sporting men of my home town. Gus Drake had a butcher shop, and they went to all prize fights within reasonable traveling distance. Remember, boxing was then an outlaw game, carried on in secret. I got on a train one day with the Drakes, and they offered to bet me $10 I couldn't beat my way. I took them on.

But when it came time for me to cop a punched ticket receipt from the hatband of a fellow passenger, the Drakes kept me from doing it. They said that wasn't in the game.

My usual procedure was to point out the window and say, "Right there they caught Jesse James." Or "In that farm house there a man killed his wife and five children last week with an axe."

While the passenger gazed, I snatched the ticket.

Bluff That Worked

Along came the conductor and the Drakes watched me to see how I'd get by. As the conductor got to the seat I occupied I stuck my head out of the window. When he touched me on the shoulder, I drew back suddenly and knocked my hat off. I jumped up and pulled the bellcord backward.

"Hey!" the conductor yelled, "what are you trying to do?"

"I lost my hat,' I cried.

"Did I get your ticket?"

"Yes, the stub was in my hat band. It was a new hat, too."

The outcome was that he gave me a new receipt. I rode along and won the $10.

The experiences of that period are a jumble in my memory because I was always on the go. I got to know Memphis, New Orleans, Cincinnati, Jacksonville, Fort Worth as well as I knew my own home town.

I had few chums. The ones I picked couldn't go my pace. They lacked the nerve. One time I left Indianapolis with Fatty Clark, son of a plumber. We were headed for Florida.

In a Georgia town we were overtaken by the pangs of acute hunger. We found a small saw in the box car—Fatty wasn't capable of beating passenger trains—and I instructed Fatty to take the saw with him and offer to trade it for food.

He was to say that our father had died and that we were on our way to join relatives in Florida. He refused to take the saw with him, and came back empty-handed.

Then I started out with the saw and my tale of woe and came back with a full meal inside of me and some biscuit and bacon sandwiches for Fatty. He refused to eat them. I suppose I crowed over him because I had succeeded where he had failed. We had a quarrel and started to fight, and split up then and there. He turned homeward.

Free of Fatty, I traveled my own way. When I was hungry, I ate in station lunch rooms and timed my exit so that I grabbed a moving train while the counter man vainly yelled for what I owed.

I might say here that I attribute much of my quickness and agility in the ring to the practise I got flipping trains. I don't believe any one could grab a faster one than I could.

Nervy With Mitts

Going from Jacksonville toward Texas I met a traveler who took an interest in my brazen system of getting by. He fed me as far as Forth Worth and after I had carried his handbag to his home, gave me a $5 bill. I headed straight for a fighter's hangout—Johnny Clarke's beer garden, where he put on bootleg matches.

I boxed a few exhibitions with Johnny and he paid me. That was the first cash I ever got for boxing. It wasn't fighting at all. I knew nothing at all about using the gloves, but I was fast and nervy. We didn't make any effort to hurt each other.

I drifted on to Dallas and got a job in a restaurant. When I had worked two weeks, I asked for my pay and the boss refused to give me any money. When I left, his new chinchilla overcoat left with me.

The town was being quarantined for smallpox and hundreds were trying to get out. A short distance outside Texarkana the Pullman conductor finally decided he would put me off the train for good, so he detailed the porter to stand beside me and see that I didn't grab the last car, as usual.

When the train started to gather speed and the porter made a move to hop it, I tackled him around the knees and held him fast. He kicked and struggled and presently a roar sounded from a gang of convicts in a road camp.

They thought the colored man was picking on the poor skinny kid. So the porter let go of me, and we started to hoof it to Texarkana. I vented my rage against railway employes in general by pelting him with rocks from time to time.

In Texarkana a tall, lean, brown sheriff gave me orders to nail the blind baggage of the next through train. There had been a lynching, and he wanted no strangers in the town.

In Joliet, while eating in the station, my chinchilla overcoat started away on the arm of stranger. I leaped ahead of him and barred the way.

"I need that coat worse than you do," I said, and snatched it from him. That coat was my front, and it represented two weeks of drudgery in that Dallas restaurant.

Pride and Retribution

It was a letter from my brother Homer that was pulling me home. Fatty Clark was telling stories about me. He said he had licked me and would do it again.

Homer, much smaller than Fatty, took up my cause and Fatty hit him on the knee with a rock, crippling him for some time.

When I got home, I kept my eyes peeled for Fatty. I was in Billy Brankamp's barber shop, getting a haircut when Fatty came in. He was much bigger than I, and good and tough. I said to him, "We can't fight in here—let's go outside." On the sidewalk we ran into a woman with a baby buggy.

"Wait until the baby-buggy gets by," I said, and while Fatty was trying to make up his mind just what to do, I handed him a punch on the jaw right across the baby.

Patroman Ceary, who knew us a, came along then and broke us apart, and we ran into an alley and started again.

I closed both of Fatty's eyes, and just then his kid brother grabbed me from behind. The kid was too small for me to fight.

I might have kicked him and put him out of the way, but I drew the line at hurting a kid. I turned and ran, and there was a mob after

'Sonny' Seeking Mat Title

One of the greatest comebacks in the history of sport will either come to an abrupt end or carry

Gus Sonnenberg

Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg to the very threshhold of the world's championship Thursday night when he clashes with Ernie Dusek in the main event of Promoter Paul Bowser's all star wrestling card at the Boston Garden. Dynamiter has been engaged in a sensational comeback for more than two months now. He has shunned the bright lights and once more gone into strict training, and as a result many experts predict he will once more be sitting on the throne and that in very short time.

But there is no secret about it that Ernie presents the toughest problem Gus has faced since he once again became serious about the wrestling business. Because the last time the two men met it was in the Garden ring and Ernie decisively whipped Gus the Goat.

What makes him most optimistic about his chances is the fact that his flying tackle is clicking as it never did before. It has been the tackle that has cracked them down lately, and it will be the tackle, Gus says, that will win him the championship.

In the semi-final, Rebel Bob Russell and Rudy Dusek tangle and it should be one of the wildest brawls ever seen on the Garden mat.

Preliminaries will include huge Harry Jacobs, Jewish star from California, vs. Everett Kibbons; Angelo Castoldi vs. Tom Casey, younger brother of the world's champion; Frank Brown, baby-faced newcomer from Texas, vs. Ed White and Steve Bartes vs. Lord Albert Mills.

me. I had broken a thumb on Fatty's head.

I got home, but was arrested, taken to the station house, kept over night and fined $1 for disorderly conduct.

It enraged my father and almost broke mother's heart. I felt that I had been given a raw deal, because Fatty was certainly as much to blame as I was. My only thought was to get away from the neighborhood, my home, the sedate town of Indianapolis and take once more to the open road.

I headed West. I worked in restaurants, played pool, beat trains—pitting my wits against a hostile world. Near Pueblo I was hiding in a Pullman, standing back of the curtains in a made-up section. The porter saw my shoes, and started to pick them up to shine them.

When he discovered that the shoes were occupied, he let out a yell and the conductor took charge of me. I was handed over to the Pueblo police, and the next morning a judge said "Ninety days on the road gang."

Now I was an enemy of society. Just a kid, and in my own mind guilty of nothing very serious, was herded in with the bums in a verminous jail and in the morning taken out to work on the road.

I got the job of waterboy with the road gang. It was no cinch, either, toting buckets of water all day. The gang decided on a general break for freedom, and I was taken into their confidence.

There were 15 of us and one guard with a shotgun. We figured that if we jumped at the same instant and ran he couldn't possibly hit but two of us at most. We were ready to take the gamble.

The signal agreed upon for the scramble was that I was to bang the water-pails together three times. I waited and watched until the men were all set for action, then I banged away, dropped the pails and lit out.

We agreed to run in different directions, but along side of me was a hobo named Boston Johnny. He was doing time for vagrancy. I heard the shotgun roar, and Johnny leaped high in the air with a terrible scream.

I got away, clean, but there ran in my ears the cry of Boston Johnny, a good, natured harmless little fellow, and I had one more grudge against respectability, against the organized society that had no room for a boy like myself.

I was riding out of Cheyenne—in a box car this time—when a brakeman entered, swinging his lantern.

"Where are you going, kid?" he asked.

"To my folks in Montana."

"Got any dough?"

"No, I haven't."

"Come here."

He backed me against the side of the car and started going through my pockets.

I had thought I was alone in the car until the brakie—or shack as we called them on road—appeared. But as the man was searching me I heard a voice:

"Stick 'em up, you big sap!"

Over my shoulder I got a glimpse of a .45 gun and behind it, in the dim light of the lantern, a tough face. (To Be Continued

Newton Relay Team Saved School Honors

Don MacKinnon's poor start and failure to gain stride in the first finals event of the 12th annual Northeastern University Interscholastic meet acted as Newton's barometer until the final race of the afternoon when the Garden City club finally broke through to capture its only five points of the carnival.

MacKinnon, as prohibitive a favorite to capture the 45-yard hurdles event as his squad to repeat for the crown, missed step in the opening strides and thereafter was never in the race.

Capturing his heat only one-fifth of a second off the record, MacKinnon was accorded a fine chance to push his school into a strong lead at the start of the meet and this fact was strengthened when Bill Pescosolido qualified for the finals.

Newton's fate went much the same way all afternoon—until the record breaking relay team redeemed the second place performances, being forced to establish a new mark over the route.

HALL FAILS IN 600

In the 600-yard run, the Garden City Club boasted the best in the field in Fred Hall, third-place winner last year, whose form this season installed him in the ruling seat.

Coasting along comfortably for the greater part of the going, Hall made his move into the leadership with two more laps to go, pulled 20 yards into the lead only to discover on the last trip around the oval that his strength was burned out.

Hall wound up in third place, being passed twice in the home stretch, and in final tabulations with points awarded on a time basis, proved completely outside on the payoff.

Arthur Hughes, winner last season in this journey, dropped back to second place this campaign despite his fine performance as Medford's Donald Reid, Hall's conqueror, turned up a winner.

SUFFOLK SIDESTEPS BATTLE OVER ASSIGNMENT OF '39 DATES

Horse racing plans for Massachusetts in 1939 were held at the barrier today when the Eastern Racing Association, operators of Suffolk Downs, refused to be drawn into the legal controversy over assignment of racing dates.

On Saturday, following a conference with counsel representing the new proposed track at Westport, Attorney General Dever announced that he would hold, today, a conference with John T. Lambert, director and member of the Eastern Racing executive committee.

Both conferences, according to the attorney general, had to do with the State Racing Commission's request for his ruling on the new commission's power to revoke racing dates already voted by the old commission.

QUESTIONS DEVER RIGHT

While General Dever was making his Saturday announcement, he received a letter from Attorney Conrad W. Crooker, representing a stockholder of the Eastern Racing Association, in which Crooker questioned the right of the attorney-general "to render opinions to or receive briefs from private parties."

In an announcement today, Director Lambert of the Eastern group said he had sent a letter to the attorney-general, stating that Suffolk Downs does not desire to enter into a legal controversy "of such a nature which might influence your opinion."

The Lambert letter said:

SAYS MISTAKE MADE

"You have been represented as saying that tomorrow (Monday) you are to have a conference with me as the representative of the Eastern Racing Association, Inc. (Suffolk Downs) re certain legal questions concerning the right of the State Racing Commission to revoke licenses to conduct thoroughbred horse racing in this Commonwealth.

"I am certain a mistake has been made. I have made no such request of you nor has any invitation for such a conference come from you or your department to me or to any other official of Suffolk Downs.

"As I understand the situation, your opinion has been asked by the State Racing Commission on one or two simple legal questions relating to its authority under our racing statutes. If my understanding is correct, this seems to be entirely a matter between two departments of our state government—the Racing Commission and the attorney general.

OPPOSES FURTHER DELAY

"In such a matter, Suffolk Downs does not desire to intervene or wish in any way to be a party to any activity of such a nature which might influence your opinion, which might influence the future judgment and decisions of the State Racing Commission and which might contribute to delay further a situation which seems important to the Commonwealth and its people, as well as to our association."

ATTY.-GEN. DEVER

Attorney-General Dever's opinion, asked for by the new Racing Commission, had been expected last week, and today Chairman Charles Connors, only retained member of the old commission, was early at his office awaiting the opinion.

It is understood that if Dever rules the commission has the power to revoke conflicting racing dates previously voted, the revocation will be ordered and new dates assigned to Suffolk Downs and Westport.

No certificates for the racing dates ever were signed and issued. It is understood, and the question of their legality hinges on whether or not the vote, and notification of the same to the interested tracks, constitutes a legal award of the dates.

4 LOSE RACE JOBS

Meanwhile, at the close of the working day today, two Curley-appointed and two Hurley-appointed members of the racing commission's office force are dropped from the payroll.

Chairman Connors denied today that their discharge was ordered by Governor Saltonstall, but said the four are being dropped "for economic reasons."

They are:

Cornelius P. Cronin of Cambridge, fiance of former Governor Hurley's sister-in-law and former Boston College athlete.

William F. Donovan of Brighton, Joseph G. Green of Medford and Stephen Olybrick of Salem.

Cronin has been assistant secretary at $3500 a year; Donovan has been also an assistant secretary, Green an accountant and Olybrick a clerk.
